

God the Parent

Whenever your kids are out of control, you can take comfort from the thought that even God's omnipotence did not extend to God's kids.

After creating heaven and earth, God created Adam and Eve. And the first thing He said to them was: "Don't."

"Don't what?" Adam asked.

"Don't eat the Forbidden Fruit." God replied.

"Forbidden fruit? We got Forbidden Fruit? Hey, Eve..we got Forbidden Fruit!"

"No way!"

"Where?"

"Don't eat that fruit!" said God.

"Why?"

"Because I am your Creator and I said so!" said God, wondering why he hadn't stopped after making the elephants.

A few minutes later God saw the kids having an apple break and was angry.

"Didn't I tell you not to eat that fruit?" the 'First Parent' asked.

"Uh huh," Adam replied.

"Then why did you?"

"I dunno," Eve answered.

"She started it!" Adam said.

"Did not!"

"DID so!"

"DID NOT!"

Having had it with the two of them, God's punishment was that Adam and Eve should have children of their own...thus the pattern was set, and it has never changed.

HUMPTY DUMPTY'S Father: Humpty, If I've told you once, I've told you a hundred times not to sit on that wall. But would you listen to me? No!

"Some people say that cats are sneaky, evil, and cruel. True, and they have many other fine qualities as well."
- Missy Dizick

Some people bend over backward not to insult others. A while ago, I overheard my sister, a travel agent, confirm her client's flight this way: "Your confirmation code is F as in Foxtrot, R as in Romeo, and I as in, uuuh, Native American."

A second grader came home from school and said to her mother, "Mom, guess what? We learned how to make babies today."

The mother, more that a little surprised, asked fearfully, "That's interesting. How do you make babies?"

"It's simple," replied the girl. "You just change 'y' to 'i' and add 'es'."

Pelly Coffee Pot June 11, 2012 vol 3 - 19

Like every Sunday, there was a really good sermon at our small country church last Sunday, but it all began the week before.

Sunday before last our Pastor told the congregation, "Next week I plan to preach about the sin of lying. To help you understand my sermon and to be prepared, I want you all to read Mark 17: 3 thru and including verse 5."

This past Sunday, as he prepared to deliver his sermon, the Pastor asked for a show of hands. He wanted to know how many had read Mark 17. Nearly every hand went up.

With his Bible in his hand, the Pastor smiled and graciously said, "In my King James Version and in your pew Bibles, Mark has only 16 chapters. I will now proceed with today's sermon on the sin of lying."

An atheist was fishing in Scotland one day when his boat was suddenly attacked by the Loch Ness monster. As the monster devoured him, he screamed, "Oh, God! Help!"

Suddenly time stood still and a booming voice came out of the sky: "I thought you didn't believe in Me?"

"Come on, God, give me a break!" screamed the man. "Two minutes ago I didn't believe in the Loch Ness monster, either!"

COLUMBUS'S Father: I don't care what you've discovered, Christopher. You could have written.

A man was sitting outside at a bar, enjoying a drink, when a nun came up and started ranting to him about the evils of alcohol.

"How do you know alcohol is evil?" asked the man. "Have you ever tasted it?"

"No, of course not!" said the nun.

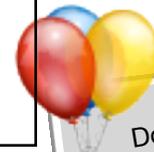

"Well, let me buy you a drink to prove it's not evil."

"I can't be seen drinking!" protested the nun.

"Well, I'll get it in a teacup for you." And the man went into the bar and ordered vodka in a teacup.

"Oh, no," said the bartender. "It's not that nun again, is it?"

In 1912, a happy meal was when a father told funny stories around the dining table. In 2012, a happy meal is what dad buys at McDonald's.

Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. Only you know what you are doing.

Life Observations

1. Marriage changes passion; suddenly you're in bed with a relative.
2. Sign in a Chinese Pet Store: "Buy one dog, get one flea."
3. I have my own little world. But it's OK, they know me here.
4. Money can't buy happiness, but it sure makes misery easier to live with.
5. If flying is so safe, why do they call the airport the terminal?
6. I don't approve of political jokes. I've seen too many of them get elected.
7. The most precious thing we have is life. Yet it has absolutely no trade-in value.
8. I love being married. It's so great to find that one special person you want to annoy for the rest of your life.
9. Shopping tip: You can get shoes for a couple of bucks at the bowling alley.
10. I am a nobody, and nobody is perfect; therefore I am perfect.
11. How come we choose from just two people to run for president and 50 for Miss America?
12. Isn't having a smoking section in a restaurant like having a peeing section in a swimming pool?

THOMAS EDISON'S Father: Of course I'm proud that you invented the electric light bulb, Thomas. Now turn off that light and get to bed!

Three Boy Scouts told their scoutmaster that they had done their good deed for the day. "What did you do, boys?" he asked.

"We helped an elderly woman cross the street," they said.

The scoutmaster looked confused. "Did it take all three of you to do that?"

"Yes!" said the boys. "She didn't want to go."

My wife and I were at my high school reunion. As I looked around, I noticed the other men in their expensive suits...and their bulging stomachs.

Proud of the fact that I weighed just five pounds more than I did when I was in high school, the result of trying to beat a living out of a rocky hillside farm, I said to my wife, "I'm the only guy here who can still wear the suit he wore when he graduated."

She glanced at the well-dressed crowd, then back at me, and said, "You're the only one who has to."

"Dad," said Little Johnny, "I'm late for football practice. Would you please do my homework for me?"

The father said irately, "Son, it just wouldn't be right."

"That's okay," replied Little Johnny, "but you could at least give it a try, couldn't you?"

A customer wanted to ask his attractive waitress for a date, but couldn't get her attention. When he was able to catch her eye, she quickly looked away.

Finally he followed her into the kitchen and blurted out his invitation. To his amazement, she readily consented.

He said, "Why have you been avoiding me all this time? You wouldn't even make eye contact."

"Oh," said the waitress, "I thought you wanted more coffee."

A nearsighted minister glanced at the note that Mrs. Jones had sent to him by an usher. The note read: "Bill Jones having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety." Failing to observe the punctuation, he startled his audience by announcing: "Bill Jones, having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety."

No Tail Light

"How long have you been driving without a tail light?" asked the policeman after pulling over a motorist.

The driver jumped out, ran to the rear of his car, and gave a long, painful groan.

He seemed so upset that the cop was moved to ease up on him a bit.

"Come on, now," he said, "you don't have to take it so hard. It isn't that serious."

"It isn't?" cried the motorist. "Then you know what happened to my boat and trailer?"

MICHELANGELO'S Father: Mike, can't you paint on walls like other children? Do you have any idea how hard it is to get that stuff off the ceiling?

ALBERT EINSTEIN'S Father: But, Albert, it's your senior picture. Can't you do something about your hair? Styling gel, mousse, something...?

In a terrible accident at a railroad crossing, a train smashed into a car and pushed it nearly four hundred yards down the track. Though no one was killed, the driver took the train company to court.

At the trial, the engineer insisted that he had given the driver ample warning by waving his lantern back and forth for nearly a minute. He even stood and convincingly demonstrated how he'd done it. The court believed his story, and the suit was dismissed.

"Congratulations," the lawyer said to the engineer when it was over. "You did superbly under cross-examination."

"Thanks," he said, "but he sure had me worried."

"How's that?" the lawyer asked.

"I was afraid he was going to ask if the lantern was lit!"

Most people hate to parallel park. The other day, I saw this woman trying to get out of a tight parking space. She'd bump the car in front, then back-up and strike the car behind her. This went on about 2 minutes.

I walked over to see if I could somehow help. My offer was declined though. She said, "Why have bumpers if you're not going to use them once in a while?"

Only two things are infinite, the universe and human stupidity, and I'm not sure about the former. - Albert Einstein
